ESTES VALLEY LAND TRUST NEWSLETTER

November 2016

THE MISSION OF THE ESTES VALLEY LAND TRUST IS TO PRESERVE AND PROTECT OPEN SPACE, VALLEYS, WETLANDS, STREAMS, RANCH LANDS, AND WILDLIFE HABITAT IN THE ESTES VALLEY AND SURROUNDING AREA. LANDS ADJACENT TO ROCKY MOUNTAIN NATIONAL PARK AND THE ARAPAHO-ROOSEVELT NATIONAL FOREST ARE OF SPECIAL CONCERN.

NEW BEGINNINGS

In 2016, Estes Valley Land Trust's first Executive Director, Mary Banken, retired after nine years of leadership. When Mary joined the land trust, she helped transition an organization of hard-working volunteers into a State-certified and nationally recognized organization.

One of her signature accomplishments was leading EVLT through the process of becoming a Land Trust Alliance-accredited organization, one of the first in the country. Mary played a key role in conservation efforts that protected hundreds of acres and provided leadership during one of the Estes Valley's most difficult events, the 2013 flood. Through it all, she displayed the grace and big laugh for which she is known.

Our new Executive Director Jeffrey Boring who, in his previous position, worked with Mary for about 5 years, says, "Mary is well respected throughout the state as a smart, compassionate and visionary conservation leader. Her commitment and love of the land trust are an inspiration." We all knew Mary would be hard to replace.

Fortunately, in Jeffrey we found a leader who is very skillfully building on Mary's work. With a master's degree in Conservation Ecology and nearly 20 years' experience preserving open space, most recently as Open

"Jeffrey has the experience, the talent and the motivation to take the land trust into a great future. As I retired from this organization that meant so much to me, it was gratifying to know that EVLT is in such strong and capable hands." –

– Mary Banken

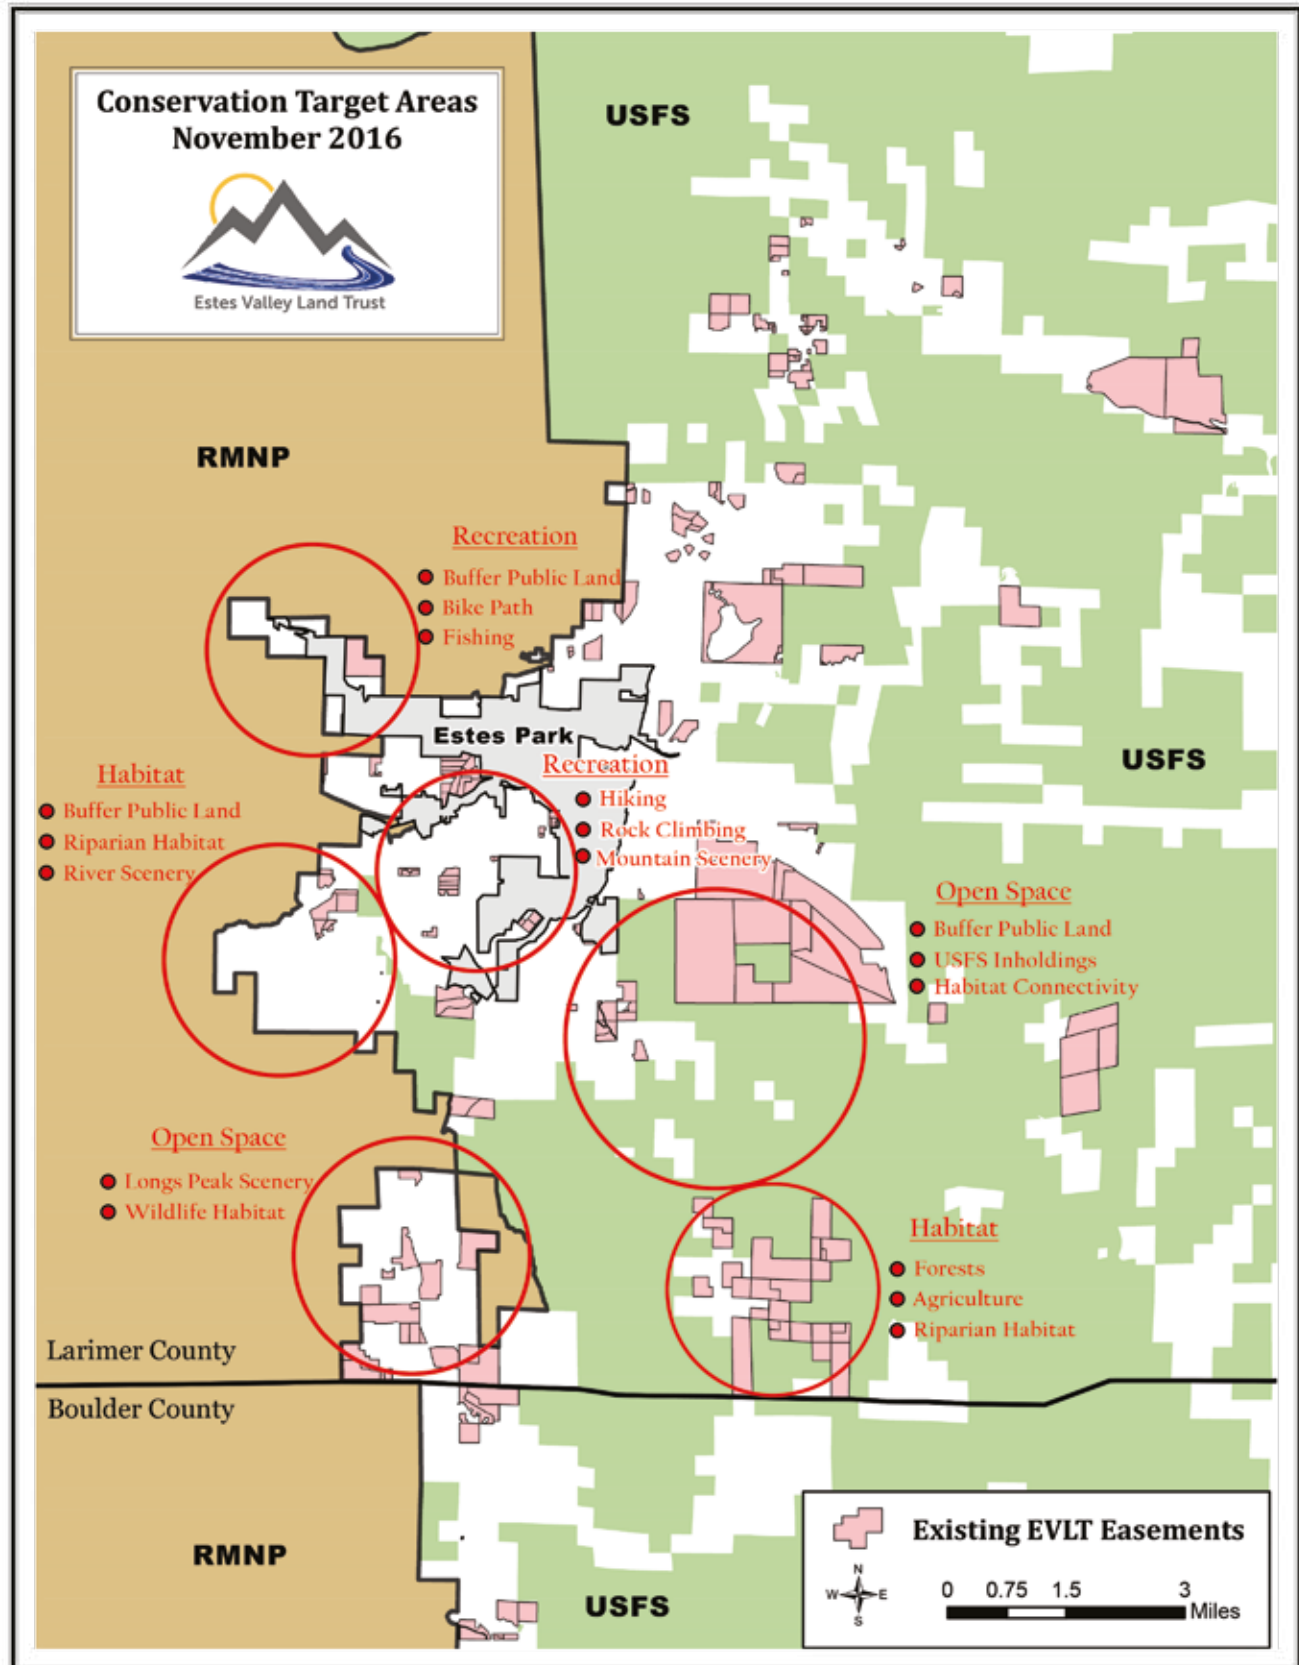

Lands Resource Specialist for Larimer County, Jeffrey is well-prepared to advance EVLT's mission.

If you haven't met Jeffrey, stop by the office to introduce yourself or meet him at one of EVLT's events.

CURRENT CONSERVATION TARGET AREAS

Our Land Protection team has been busy! They are currently working with landowners to permanently preserve the conservation values of numerous properties. The public benefits of those conserved properties will reflect the broad scope of EVLT's preservation mission. They include ranching and agriculture, recreation and public access, buffers to public lands, and the preservation of wildlife habitats and scenic views.

The map below shows a few of the areas where we are actively working to protect land.

A MESSAGE FROM EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR JEFFREY BORING: SETTING OUR SIGHTS

I was thrilled and honored to join Estes Valley Land Trust in May, and six months into the job, I'm even more excited about our future.

I've worked in the conservation field for nearly 20 years and have observed a few things that set the Estes Valley Land Trust apart:

VOLUNTEER FOCUS. Our volunteer-based conservation easement monitoring program is a force and the envy of other Colorado land trusts. I am frequently asked how we're able to get the community involved in conservation at the grassroots level.

Also, EVLT's "working" Board of Directors could more accurately be called an "over-achieving" or "exceptionally talented" Board. Many Board members volunteer dozens of hours a month and provide administrative, financial and other professional services to the land trust, free of charge.

CHARITABLE GIVING. The majority of our conservation success is based on giving, either by a landowner donating a conservation easement to the land trust or a member making a financial donation. While EVLT partners with organizations that provide financial support, such as Larimer County and Great Outdoors Colorado (GOCO), our success is based on the charitable acts of community members.

SMALL SIZE. With just one full-time and two part-time staff, EVLT keeps costs low, yet expectations are high. Working with a small staff and large pool of exceptionally talented volunteers is a rare but, in this case, highly successful model.

A small, volunteer-focused land trust in a dynamic mountain community provides incredible opportunities. Estes Valley Land Trust is poised to grow from its stable foundation and here's what I'd like to see us focus on:

MORE LAND CONSERVATION. Land conservation is our bread and butter and we will always work to protect the most beautiful and environmentally significant open space in the Estes Valley. Large open space properties that aren't under easement remain at risk of development. Ensuring that the character of the valley is protected for future generations will require much work by EVLT.

MORE RECREATION, WHERE APPROPRIATE. EVLT will help foster additional outdoor recreation opportunities where they have the blessing of the landowner and won't harm conservation values. Knoll-Willows Open Space and Hermit Park Open Space are two examples where public recreation is integral to the EVLT conservation easement.

FUNDRAISING, PARTICULARLY FOR STEWARDSHIP.

The land trust community has a common mantra, "Forever is a longtime." EVLT is legally required to enforce each conservation easement FOREVER. Unfortunately, we do not have the funding to carry out that responsibility forever. Our Forever Estes Campaign is a new concept designed to ensure that the land trust will always be around to defend every conservation easement.

The Estes Valley is a very special place. With the combination of exceptional members, landowners, volunteers, and the EVLT Board and staff, I am confident it will remain that way.

IT'S A WRAP, 2016 CONSERVATION EASEMENT MONITORING COMPLETE

How does EVLT ensure that the terms of its conservation easements are forever protected?

As a State-certified holder of conservation easements and a nationally accredited land trust, one of EVLT's most important responsibilities is to annually visit each property that we preserve. With 160 conservation easement properties covering 15 square miles across the Estes Valley, it's a huge job.

EVLT is very fortunate to have a team of over 100 dedicated volunteer easement monitors who help our staff. Board Director Craig Axtell says, "Volunteer monitors make it possible for the land trust to meet our stewardship obligations while at the same time serving as a key communication link between EVLT and the landowner." In 2016, volunteers contributed 560 hours monitoring the land trust's conservation easements.

All properties under conservation easements held by EVLT were monitored in 2016. Thank you to all conservation easement landowners for your excellent stewardship. If you are interested in becoming a volunteer easement monitor, contact the EVLT office by the end of April.

Thanks to Our Monitors!

INTRODUCING FOREVER ESTES, OUR NEW PLANNED GIVING CIRCLE

The Board of Directors of the Estes Valley Land Trust is pleased to announce the formation of Forever Estes, a circle of members and friends of EVLT who have chosen to include Estes Valley Land Trust in their estate planning.

Our mission at EVLT is to preserve open space for future generations, a mission that we must fulfill in perpetuity. A legacy gift to EVLT is perhaps the ultimate expression of support for this mission. Forever Estes was created to acknowledge those individuals who have generously made such a contribution.

The Board is pleased to recognize the following friends of EVLT for their dedication to the goals and objectives of the Estes Valley Land Trust:

Anonymous	Susan Harris
Gail Albers	Carol Henning
Mary Banken	Mary Lamy

Stacey and Robin Harding

From Board Director Robin Harding:

"Stacey and I believe that by including Estes Valley Land Trust in our estate planning, we are making a long-term investment in the future of the Estes Valley. To us, the Estes Valley represents the epitome of the Rocky Mountain West: rugged, snow-capped peaks; clear, rushing rivers; and meadows and valleys teeming with an abundance of wildlife. Protecting those open spaces for generations to come is the mission of EVLT, and that's a mission we are proud to support.

If you are interested in learning more about a legacy gift to EVLT, I'd be happy to discuss it with you. Please call me, Robin Harding, at 970-577-8866. Your inquiry will be held in strictest confidence."

CONSERVATION AWARD

BOARD AND STAFF UPDATE

EVLT is very pleased to welcome two new Directors to our Board and a new staff person.

Vaughn Baker (right) joined the Board after retiring last year from his 13-year position as Superintendent of Rocky Mountain National Park and 31 years with the National Park Service. In addition to numerous park management positions, Vaughn has also served as a legislative affairs specialist and park planner.

As the owner of Mountain Sage Consulting, which offers leadership, planning and resources for organizations, Mark Holdt (left) brings to the Board considerable expertise in nonprofit management. His 30+ years' experience also includes serving as president and CEO for three not-for-profit organizations and a charitable foundation.

Karen Monks, an EVLT member since 2012, joined Jeffrey and Jan as part-time staff in a position we've dubbed Bookkeeper Plus to reflect the many ways in which she is helping. In addition to her bookkeeping experience, Karen is an attorney and has worked as a computer systems engineer.

All three of our new team members bring depth and valuable experience to our organization and our mission. When you see them, please thank them for their excellent service to land protection in our community.
